

The American Society for Nutrition (ASN) invites you to submit an abstract for presentation at NUTRITION 2023, which will be held July 22-25 in Boston, Massachusetts, USA. Abstract submission is open now and the deadline to submit is March 1, 2023.

With this return to an in-person meeting, NUTRITION 2023 will be a homecoming for the nutrition community and we are expecting an impressive turnout of experts from all over the world. NUTRITION 2023 offers an excellent opportunity to contribute to an international showcase of nutrition research.

Benefits from presenting your abstract at NUTRITION 2023:

- Share your research with a prestigious global audience,
- Publish your research in one of the American Society for Nutrition's open access journals, Current Developments in Nutrition,
- Exposure to leading news journalists covering nutrition research,
- Opportunities to participate in abstract-based award competitions, and
- Network, exchange ideas and establish collaborations with peers in academia, clinical practice, industry, and government.

Abstracts can include:

- New research: Unpublished, original research and/or secondary analysis of data,
- Methods: Newly established or characterized methods, or evaluations of existing methods,
- Protocols: Descriptions of proposed studies, or recruitment and process results of newly started studies,
- Case study vignette: A clinical vignette or case report is a means of disseminating new knowledge gained from clinical practice.

Join ASN in Boston, a unique and historic North American city! Boston is a world-class destination, easily accessible from all points, and offers a dynamic, distinctive, and delicious experience. Its renowned medical and educational institutions have helped to make it an international center of learning and intellectualism.

The deadline for abstract submissions is March 1, 2023. For more information on the submission guidelines and to submit your abstract, please click here.

The registration and housing site will open on February 28, 2023. Additional details can be found here and when the registration site opens in a few weeks.